

WHAT IT MIGHT BE LIKE — TO HAVE — ALZHEIMER'S

Understanding changes the way we care.

Alzheimer's disease affects more than memory. It can change how a person sees the world, processes information, and connects with others. Simple moments can become confusing and frustrating. Everyday tasks can feel impossible.

DAILY CHALLENGES MIGHT INCLUDE:

Confusion and disorientation

Not remembering where you are or what you came to do.

Communication difficulties

Struggling to find the right words or follow a conversation.

Changes in perception

Sounds may be muffled, lights may be too bright, and rooms may feel unfamiliar.

Memory challenges

Forgetting names, places, or even familiar routines.

Emotional impact

Feelings of frustration, anxiety, helplessness, or isolation.

WHY THIS EXPERIENCE MATTERS

This hands-on experience helps you see the world through a different lens and make a lasting impact.

Gain Insight

Understand the physical and mental challenges faced every day.

Build Empathy

See the world through someone else's eyes.

Improve Care

Create an environment that supports dignity, comfort, and connection.

Strengthen Relationships

Improve communication and foster more meaningful connections.

*Awareness brings understanding.
Understanding brings better care.*

Simple tasks can feel overwhelming.

A new perspective can change everything.

Empathy leads to more compassionate care.
